

COAAA Professional Education

November 7, 2017

8:30AM– 11:45AM Registration begins at 8:00AM

Ethics, Boundaries & Personal Responsibility Ethics and responsibility go hand-in-hand. Without personal responsibility, ethical codes and roles are merely abstract concepts. Following rules and behaving ethically at work is a choice and a responsibility. This 3 hr. program will provide an overview and appreciation of the importance of professional ethics in the supervisor/supervisee relationship, the worker/client relationship, and within the organization. Issues related to ethical dilemmas will also be covered, along with strategies for preventing the most common ethics failures in organizations.

Speaker

Ruth McMonagle MBA, MSW, LISW-S has been an independent trainer and consultant for over 30 years, specializing in management / supervisory training and increasing personal effectiveness. She is a lecturer, workshop facilitator, consultant and counselor. She holds a Master's Degree in Social Work and Business Administration. Ruth is a member of American Society for Training and Development. She is a licensed independent social worker in the State of Ohio.

Objectives

At the conclusion of this workshop, participants will be able to:

- Define the three types of boundaries and how they apply to supervisor-worker and worker-client relationships
- Define dual-role relationships and list the problems and risks that are inherent to them
- List the main principles to guide ethical decision making when confronted with ethical dilemmas
- Apply ethical principles to real-life situations and ethical dilemmas
- Understand the relationship between personal responsibility and ethical behavior
- Know how to use the model of an 'ethical test' and its use in determining ethical behavior
