Addressing Ethical Boundaries with the Social Service Profession: Drawing the Line in the Sand

Although most social service professionals view their primary role as a “helper” for consumers they serve, workers are often challenged by the complex and ever-changing dynamics within their relationships with clients. The struggle to find a balance between empowering and helping often precipitates complex boundary issues that can be difficult to identify and yet easy to cross. This training will explore the issue of client relationships and ethical boundaries for those working in the social service profession. Specifically, this program will illuminate common boundary violations within the social service profession and strategies for addressing boundaries with consumers. A detailed review of ethical guidelines from various licensure boards will also be provided.

Speakers

Dr. Brian L. Bethel is a Professional Clinical Counselor-Supervisor (PCC-S), a Licensed Chemical Dependency Counselor (LCDC III), and a Registered Play Therapist-Supervisor (RPT-S) with specialized training in counseling children, adolescents, and families. Dr. Bethel earned a PhD in Counselor Education and Supervision from Ohio University where he also obtained dual Master’s degrees in Clinical Counseling and Rehabilitation Counseling. With over twenty years of experience, Dr. Bethel brings a diversity of clinical strengths to his counseling practice. Dr. Bethel’s competencies have developed through both his educational achievements and his professional experiences. He has provided counseling services to children, adolescents, and adults who have been impacted by trauma. As the senior therapist for a nationally accredited child advocacy center, Dr. Bethel often provides expert testimony in child sexual abuse cases, clinical mental health topics, and serves as a clinical consultant for numerous agencies in the area of the impact of trauma. As the founder and director of Interplay Counseling and Consultation Services, Dr. Bethel has offered therapeutic services to many individuals who have been affected by traumatic experiences. He has been invited and presented at the local, state, national, and international level and has developed and facilitated numerous workshops in a variety of venues. Dr. Bethel is a published author who has offered contributions to the field in the area of child sexual abuse, childhood trauma and clinical practice.
