

COAAA Professional Education

March 14, 2019

9:00AM - 12:15PM Registration begins at 8:30AM

Behavioral Health: A Journey Through the Lifespan The inherent difficulty of living with Alzheimer's Disease or any form of dementia is exacerbated when it co-occurs with other mental disorders such as depression, anxiety disorders and psychotic conditions. The CDC reports that serious symptoms of depression occur in up to 50% of older adults with Alzheimer's Disease and major depression occurs in roughly 25% of cases. Similarly, anxiety disorders and psychotic conditions are also common, with anxiety disorders occurring in up to 30% of older adults with Alzheimer's Disease. People with mental illness, like the general population, may be diagnosed with dementia as they age. Differential diagnosis is important in understanding the behaviors one observes when working with their consumers. This workshop will explore what mental health looks like throughout the life span and identify some of the ways professionals can enhance their understanding of some of the presenting behaviors and challenges they may see in their consumers.

Speaker

Katherine "Katie" Waugh, LISW-S, has been the Supervisor in the Specialized Recovery Services program at the Central Ohio Area Agency on Aging since 2016. Prior to joining COAAA she had her own private mental health counseling practice as well as working contingent for Ohio Health Riverside Methodist Hospital Emergency Department. Her background also includes working as an independent clinician in the Behavioral Health Unit at Ohio Health. Katie received her Master's of Social Work from The Ohio State University and is a licensed independent social worker with supervisor designation.

Objectives

At the conclusion of this workshop, participants will be able to:

- Discuss what mental health looks like throughout the life span
- Examine how dementia can play into behavioral health
- Identify what services are available for those with mental health diagnoses
- Recognize how the services tie into the programming at COAAA as well as the community
