Empowered Resilience: Engaging in Culturally Responsive and Trauma Supportive Care for Marginalized Individuals and Communities

Explore and increase understanding regarding the impact of oppression and marginalization as trauma for individuals and communities with a focus on the ways relationships and connection can be used as tools in creating collaborative healing environments. Why this matters: Understanding trauma and how traumatic events can impact both individuals and communities is essential when promoting recovery and resilience; and reducing the potential for ongoing harm and re-traumatization through engagement and treatment experiences. Trauma informed/supportive care is a treatment and engagement framework that involves understanding, recognizing, and responding to the effects of all types of trauma and/or prolonged stress. This framework emphasizes the physical, psychological, and emotional safety for participants and providers; and supports survivors in rebuilding a sense of control and empowerment.

Speaker

Erin Upchurch (she/her) MSSA, LISW-S presently serves as the Executive Director for Kaleidoscope Youth Center, an organization that works to serve and support LGBTQIA+ youth and young adults. She is an integrative social work practitioner, a long standing community leader, and facilitator of conversations centered on disrupting and reducing harm related to the experiences of oppression for marginalized and minority communities. Her approach is centered on regulating and resting cultural and organizational nervous systems in support of collective rest, clarity, and increased capacity. Erin is additionally Adjunct Faculty at the Ohio State University College of Social Work; and as a practitioner specializes in working with youth, families, and communities in the areas of mental health, trauma recovery and resilience; and building collective and individual power.

Objectives

At the conclusion of this workshop, participants will be able to:

- Increase understanding regarding the impact of trauma and exposure to prolonged stress specific to minority/marginalized communities
- Understanding experiences of marginalization and oppression as trauma. · Identify tools to support culturally responsive and inclusive environments
- Identify tools to encourage a sense of belonging and connection within teams/communities
- Recognize and respond to the impact on providers when working with those impacted by trauma
- Identify tools to develop a personal practice of soul care and wellness.
